Scoutmaster Rosendo Tyson of the Dispensary congratulates Samuel Rajroop of the Laboratory and Lionel Coombs of the Hospital, two of the ten new Rovers in the investiture at the Methodist Church August 19.

Di 31 di Agosto mainta nek stiff tabata cos comun na Sport Park, ora tabatin un pustamento di subimento di vlie cu celebración di Anja di La Reina. E portret aki riba ta mustra ta kico tabata e causá; casi tur cabez ta tirá p'atras pa weita e cantidad di vlienan di tur forma na larja. Na pagina a tin mas portret di e evento único aki.

Stiff necks were pretty common around the Sport Park the morning of August 31. This picture, with practically every face pointing up, shows why. With dozens of kites of every description in the sky, there was plenty to look at. For details of this unique event see page 4.

Atomic Bomb Makes Maps Late

Early in June, when military men were still predicting that the Japanese war might last another two years, a quantity of Esso War Maps of the Pacific theater was ordered for distribution to interested employees. As it turned out, the atomic bomb, the Russian declaration of war, and the War Map all arrived at about the same time.

While the suddenness of Japan's capitulation has made it too late to follow the progress of the war on these maps, they may still be of interest to many for reference purposes. The territorial settlements in the Orient made at the peace table will be a big factor in preserving the world's future peace, and the maps can be of help in following these important events.

The maps are in six colors, and cover the entire Pacific theater including the outer reaches of China and Siberia. All important air mileages are shown accurately on the map.

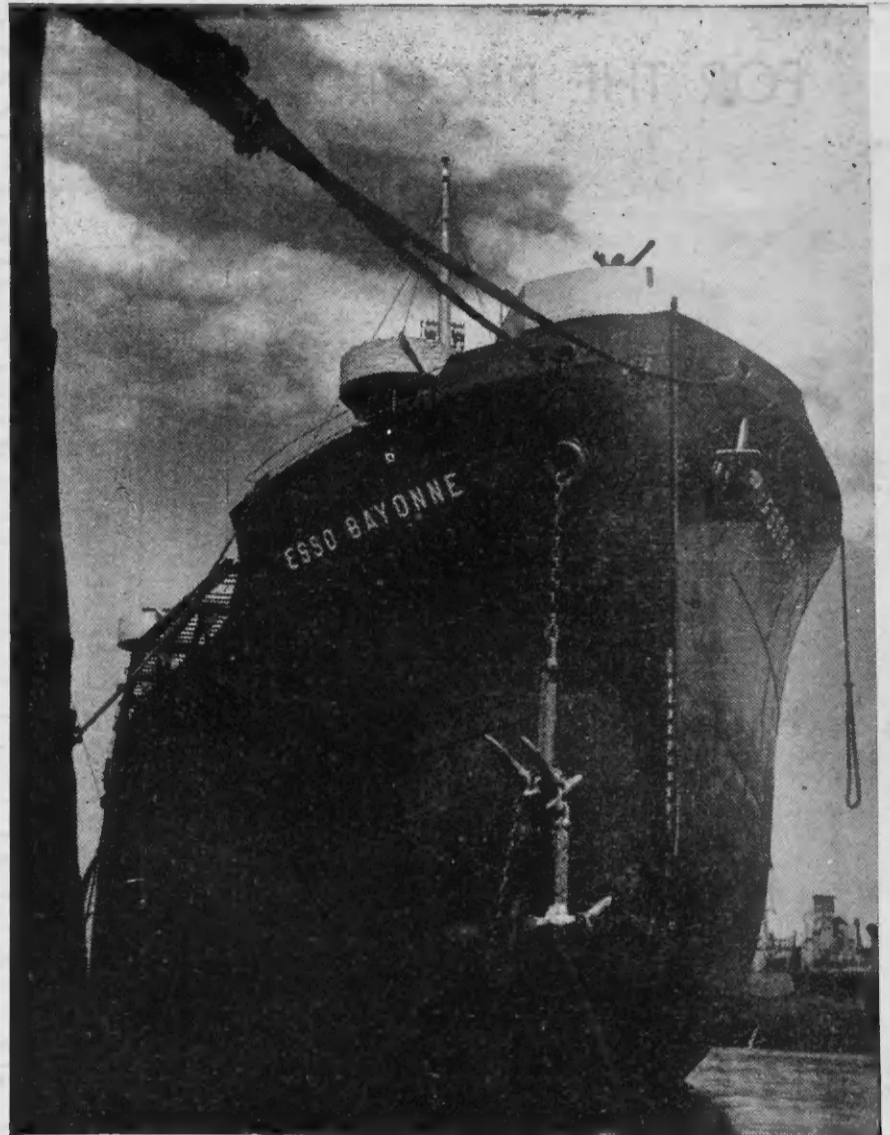

In addition there are insets of the more strategic areas on a larger scale. These include such places as Manila Bay, Tokyo Bay, Hong Kong, Formosa, Vladivostok, and several island groups formerly held by the Japs. On the reverse side is a large scale map of the Japanese home islands.

Any employee interested in having one of these maps may obtain one by calling the Aruba Esso News, phone 523, or by mailing his name and department name to the News' office in Bachelor Quarters 3. The number available is limited; first come, first served.

Oferta di Mapanan di Guerra Na Empleadonan

Di 5 di September "Esso Bayonne" a trece un recuerdo di e anochi trágico den haaf. Despues cu e tabata ancrá un dia p'afor di rif, el a hiza ancrá di e lake tanker "Oranjestad", un di e vapornan cu un submarino Aleman a sink a nochi di 18 di Februari 1942.

Government Announces Possibility of Permanent Repatriation to Netherlands; Vacations Not Yet

There will be a limited opportunity for repatriation from Curaçao to the Netherlands during October, according to an announcement made by the Government Secretariat late in August.

Vacationists or others who want to go to Holland for a short stay are not eligible under the Government's present plan, which is intended solely for those who are returning on a permanent basis.

Those interested in such permanent repatriation are applying by letter to the Government Secretariat, with the specific declaration that they are willing to travel by the first available shipping opportunity designated by the Government according to established priority regulations. Applicants also indicate for whose account the transportation cost will be.

Critical shortages of most of the essentials of living, combined with a lack of shipping space, continue to make vacation trips to the Continent impossible. No indications of when this situation will change have been seen yet.

FOR THE RECORD

Quoting a letter from S. O. Co. (N. J.) President Eugene Holman to Lago's Executive Vice-President W. J. Haley:

August 23, 1945

Dear Mr. Haley:

The welcome news of the surrender of the Japanese and the ending of World War II should not be allowed to pass without appropriate recognition to the organization as a whole, and to each individual member of it, for the outstanding job which has been done during the war years.

It would be impossible to include in this letter a list of the specific difficulties which have been overcome or the definite accomplishments in the furtherance of the war effort. This Company's record in providing the sinews of war is second to none, and I am sure we can hold our heads high with pride as we look back on the quantity and quality of the crude and products which have been produced and distributed. Sharing honors with those actually engaged in operations are the headquarters and technical staffs who have applied their inventive genius and knowledge to research and development of entirely new products and the improvement of old ones.

On behalf of the Board of Directors I want to extend our sincere appreciation for the high success of these efforts, with the suggestion that we would like you to pass on these thoughts personally to every individual member of your domestic and South American organizations.

Very truly yours,
(signed) Eugene Holman

In a letter to President L. G. Smith, Mr. Haley says: "It is a pleasure to hand you a copy of Mr. Holman's letter of August 23, commenting on the contribution the Company and its members have made to the war effort. Aruba's participation in this work has been outstanding, and I want to add to Mr. Holman's letter of appreciation our sincere congratulations".

The picture at the top of the column (the original of which is painted on a large tank near the Main Gate) tells the rest of the story. It shows in terms of the vital machines of war how much Lago's men and women did to help the Allies again "float to victory on a sea of oil".

SERVICE SLANTS

In a letter to Paul Jensen of the Instrument Department, Harry Bozorth of the U. S. Army, who hopes to return soon, reports of his more than considerable travels in the time he has spent in the service.

His service took him from Port Tewfik, Egypt, all through the North African campaign, on up through Sicily and into Italy. Abu Zenema, Asmara, Sidi Barrani, Tobruk, Bengazi, Tripoli, Tunis, Pasteum, Volturno, Naples, Rome, and Florence are some of the memorable names which appear in the letter and indicate some of Harry's travels.

He is evidently doing quite well in the Army, ".....my bar came May 27th.. and I accepted.....". He says that the whole thing has been interesting and in the long run the experience will prove worth while.

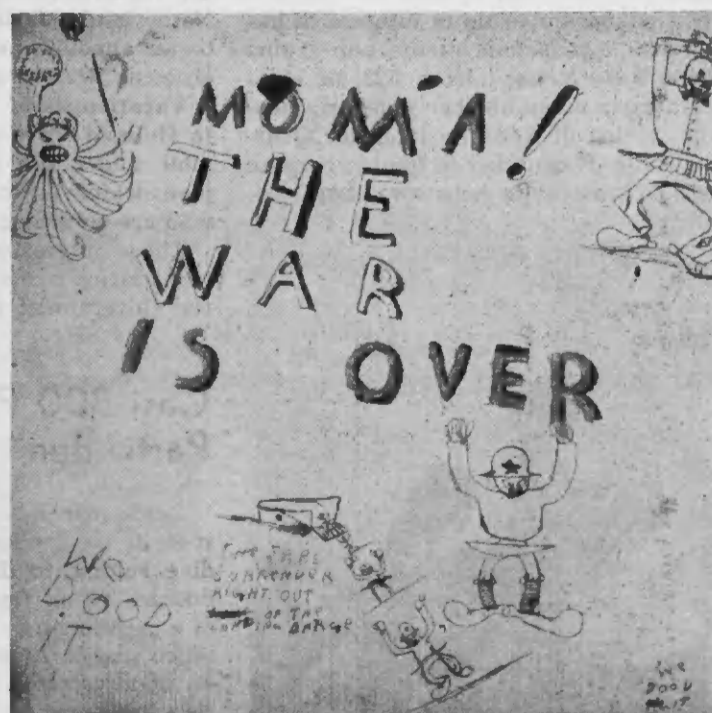

The Garage had visitors early this month when two former employees of that department, now in the U.S. Army, came in on ten-day furloughs. Left is Pvt. Paul Hinkson, who enlisted at Subaneta last February; at right, Pvt. Carlos Emers, who joined up in January. They spent their training period in Puerto Rico, and are now being reassigned, possibly to one of the occupation groups.

Word has come from Pfc. H. S. Gumbs of Gas and Poly., telling of his experiences somewhere in the Caribbean area. He is in charge of a pump house supplying gasoline and fuel oil to ships running to different islands in the Antilles. Gumbs' letter states that he is expecting a promotion soon and he wishes to be remembered to his friends. He worked for Lago from June, 1939 until January, 1945, when he left to enter the U. S. Army.

WE DOOD IT—

When John Landaker of Colony Service came home with Mrs. Landaker from a party the night the Japanese surrender was announced, they found this sign hanging on the doorknob, the product of their young son's fertile imagination.

Commemorating the event in his own original ten-year-old style, he announces: "Moma! the war is over".

The octopus at upper left is saying "So solly, I sullender". At lower center the artist says "The Japs surrender right out of the landing barge", and he liked "We dood it" so well that he lettered it on twice.

Early Registration Required To Vote Outside Home District

A recent Government notice will be of interest to employees who wish to cast votes in the forthcoming election of Curaçao Legislative Council members. The following is a translation:

1. Voters whose names appear on the official list of voters for the Electoral District of Aruba and who wish to vote in the Electoral District of Curaçao must submit a declaration to that effect in person to the undersigned not later than 30 days prior to November 5, 1945, which is Election Day for Curaçao Legislative Council members. Forms for such declaration are obtainable free of charge at the office of the undersigned.

2. Voters who can produce acceptable reasons for their absence on November 5 from the Electoral District in Aruba where they are supposed to vote according to the official list of voters, and who are unable to be present in their district within the hours of 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. on Election Day, shall, if they so request, be given the opportunity to cast their vote in such other Electoral District in Aruba as they designate. Such request must be filed in person at the undersigned's office 30 days prior to November 5, and forms are available free of charge at the office of the undersigned.

About 200 feet of rope must be wound onto the windlass before the water bucket comes to the top, and it takes five trips down the well to fill the two half-barrels. (The faithful burro gets his drink first, in a natural hollow in the rock, and then the barrels are filled.) This picturesque old well is located about two miles from San Nicolas, on a road that runs north from the U.S.O.

Here and There

The Esso War Maps offered to readers in this issue were flying the China coast in the last months of the war, according to a letter received by Wallace Pratt, retired Company vice-president, from his son, a fighter pilot in the Philippines. Wrote Captain Pratt:

"...received an Esso War Map with all our courses plotted on it. It has become standard equipment for the flight leader to carry this map on China coast missions. It has the courses plotted to everywhere and the air miles written in. Very convenient".

When Gerrit Croes, a Storehouse employee since 1939, was married August 30, his fellow-workers started him off well with the gift of a stove.

Classroom work for 102 new apprentices started September 4. Out of 135 boys who were tested, these 102 scored high enough to be selected for the 1945 program. This represents the greatest proportion to pass the tests of any group since the apprentice training plan began.

Captain Harold Cunningham, whose death at 61 was announced in a recent "Time" magazine, was a former Standard marine man, and once spent a short time in Aruba (1933) relieving Marine Manager R. Rodger during the latter's vacation. Before his service as port captain for the Company in New York harbor, he had been commodore of the United States Lines fleet and master of the "Leviathan".

Another Standard mariner, Captain A. C. Steinnmuller, was in print recently when "National Petroleum News" devoted its cover to his picture and a story of his war job. An old tanker captain and later Company port pilot at Houston, he was called into government service at the start of the war, and was put in charge of all Mediterranean port captains after the first Army landings in Africa. Their job was to keep tankers and their precious cargoes continually on the move in the Mediterranean area.

Aruba is playing host this weekend to the District 44 Assembly of the Rotary Club, September 21, 22, and 23. Visitors are here from Curaçao and from most of the 19 cities and towns in Venezuela that have Rotary organizations, for three days of business sessions interspersed with social functions.

Among other items on the calendar for the visitors is a tour of the refinery Sunday morning.

Riding on helium —

Company-developed Butyl synthetic rubber may save airlines as much as $15,000 annually for each large plane, according to tire manufacturers. Butyl's ability to hold helium with even less loss than a natural rubber tube loses air is the key to the saving.

Thirteen pounds of helium in a Butyl tube does the same job as 92 pounds of air in a 110-inch tire — or a saving of 158 pounds for the two main wheels of an airliner.

Airlines men estimate that this saving on weight, converted to added passenger and freight-carrying capacity, is worth $100 per pound per year.

The election of Bushrod Brush Howard to the Board of Directors of Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) was announced recently by Ralph W. Gallagher, Chairman of the Board. He becomes the eleventh director, following the recent retirement of Wallace E. Pratt.

Mr. Howard is widely known in the shipping world, having been associated with Jersey's large tanker fleet since he joined the Company in 1920. He has been general manager of Jersey's marine group throughout the war period.

His broad experience with tanker movements, both domestic and foreign, was extremely valuable when the war in Europe began. Mr. Howard went to England in 1941 as Admiral Land's representative to expedite tanker turn-arounds in British ports and speed up deliveries of vitally needed oil from the United States.

In 1942 Mr. Howard went to India and the Suez area as a representative of the War Shipping Administration to speed up cargo movements involving all types of war materials flowing to India and the middle east.

Richard Vryling LeSueur, 64, prominent Canadian civic leader and president and chairman of the board of Imperial Oil Limited, Canadian affiliate of S. O. Co. (N.J.), died in Toronto September 6 after a brief illness.

Vacation days are over as the first busload of children unloads at the Lago School for the opening of the 1945 term. The first day's enrollment was 242, the largest in the school's history, and later additions have swelled this figure to 252. Travel complications made it necessary to start with five substitute teachers, but the regular faculty is expected to be complete in a short time.

San Lucas and Savaneta to Play Off Tie for S.P. Championship

San Lucas, last year's champions in Sport Park baseball, are playing the Army team "Savaneta" for the 1945 championship, with one game finished as the News goes to press and either one or two games to go.

The three-game playoff (best two out of three) was to have started September 9, but the Savaneta team's unexpected departure to play in Puerto Rico required a week's delay, and the games started September 16.

At the close of regular league play any one of three teams could have landed in a position to play the Puerto Ricans for the championship; in the last two weeks of play, however, the Dutch Army was badly upset by the Dodgers to knock them out of the running, and Garage handed San Lucas a forfeit, making the latter tied up with Savaneta in the top spot.

Pictures and results of the playoff will appear in the next issue.

Among the many colorful floats that paraded on Oranjestad's streets in the celebration August 31, one of the most realistic was that below. It depicts a Dutch mill, house, and garden, with the miller and his family in traditional costume. (Photograph by Samuel Rajroop of No. 2 Laboratory).

Over 75 kites ranged from half-inch to man-size.

Meet Draws Nearly 300 Entrants

From the start of the cross country race and the novel kite-flying contest in the morning to the final awarding of prizes late in the day, the Queen's Birthday athletic carnival was the biggest display of speed and sportsmanship at the Sport Park since it was opened.

A crowd estimated at over 2,000 persons saw the events from start to finish, and nearly 300 boys and girls, men and women, tried their speed or skill to win one of the valuable prizes offered. Over 100 prizes were at stake, valued at approximately Fls. 1200, and competition for them was keen among all ages.

The first event of the day was the cross country run from Spanish Lagoon to the Sport Park. The winner, L. G. Ariza, ran the distance so fast (41 minutes) that the officials weren't yet prepared to flag him in when he arrived at the Sport Park. Second place went to C. George, who also took second in the July 4 marathon, and third was won by D. Alexander. Joseph Antoine got the first lap prize, and also won a consolation prize for running second to within 150 yards of the Sport Park where he collapsed.

Later in the morning the kite contest held the stage, and the large number of entrants and spectators proved the interest in this feature.

The races started at noon and ran through five o'clock, with the last event, the tug-of-war, being cancelled for lack of time. Mechanical Superintendent W. R. C. Miller presented the prizes and the day closed as a fitting celebration of the Queen's Birthday.

Di tur e bunta disfran cu tabatin den e parada den cayanan di Oranjestad cu celebracion di Anja di La Reina un di e mas realistico tabata esun riba e portret na banda robes. E ta muestra un mulina holandes, cas y hofli, cu e molinero y su famia bisti cu traje tradicional. (E portret ta saca pa Samuel Rajroop di No. 2 Laborator).

The first of its kind in 31, and probably caused test drew over 75 kites and several hundred spectators to the Sport Park in the morning before the meet August 31, and probably caused countless stiff necks as all heads tilted back to watch the aerial display.

At lower left a group watches G. Morin and his helpers controlling the biggest kite, which called for clothesline rope instead of string.

At lower right, small boys dive for shelter into the barrels later used in the obstacle race, when a heavy rain fell during the contest.

In addition to the prizes awarded for the various events there were special prizes given. A cup went to R.O. Jackson for his sterling performance on the track as the "most outstanding athlete". Jackson won the 100 yard dash, the 250 yard dash and the broad jump. In addition to winning these events, he was a member of the winning 440 yard relay team and was the other half of the second place team in the threelegged race. Runner-up for the "Most outstanding athlete" honor was Ivan Brewster. And to Hyacinth Huckleman, the smallest girl, and entered in all the events for girls went a special consolation prize. She is six years old.

QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY, 1945

1- "Man Mountain" McLean puts every ounce (he has 3,392 of them) behind the shot, with a throw that won him second place.

2- Most runners start with the notion of getting there first, but few concentrate on the idea as strongly as Reynold Jackson, who has a way of arriving first at the finish tape in most of the races he starts. (As a waiter at the Dining Hall his legs come in for very regular exercise). Here he breaks the tape in the 220

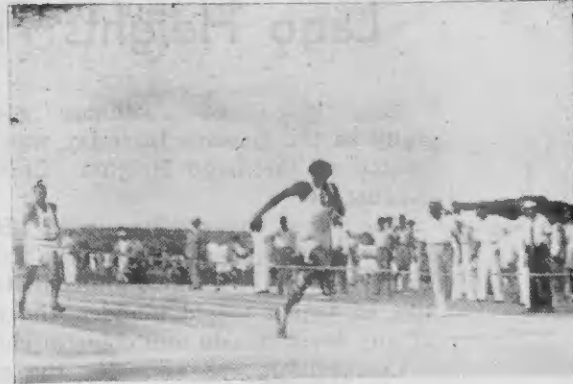

3- When it comes to speed, the girls of all ages from six up were not to be outdone. This shows a close finish in the 50-yard dash.

4- At this late date, the judges will overlook the fact that thumbs are holding most of the eggs firmly in their spoons at this stage of the egg-and-spoon race.

5- Running and skipping rope at the same time holds no difficulties for this group of experts. The little girls covered the ground about as fast as if the race had been an ordinary sprint.

6- The official music of the afternoon was furnished by the Excelsior Brass Band, but the Harmonioso group, led by Calvin Iilidge, gave the crowd some popular South American rhythms over the loud speaker.

7- This shows a small section of the crowd, which was estimated at over 2,000. Most were present from the first race to the last.

8- The prizes ranged in value from Fls. 80 (first prize in the Cross Country) to Fls. 5, with an average of about Fls. 16.

9- Mechanical Supt. W. R. C. Miller addresses the crowd before presenting the prizes. Beside him is Bipat Chand, announcer, and at left in the prize booth are J. G. Getts, personnel manager, Don Blair, who coordinated the meet with the committee, and Paul Jensen of Instrument, who took official movies.

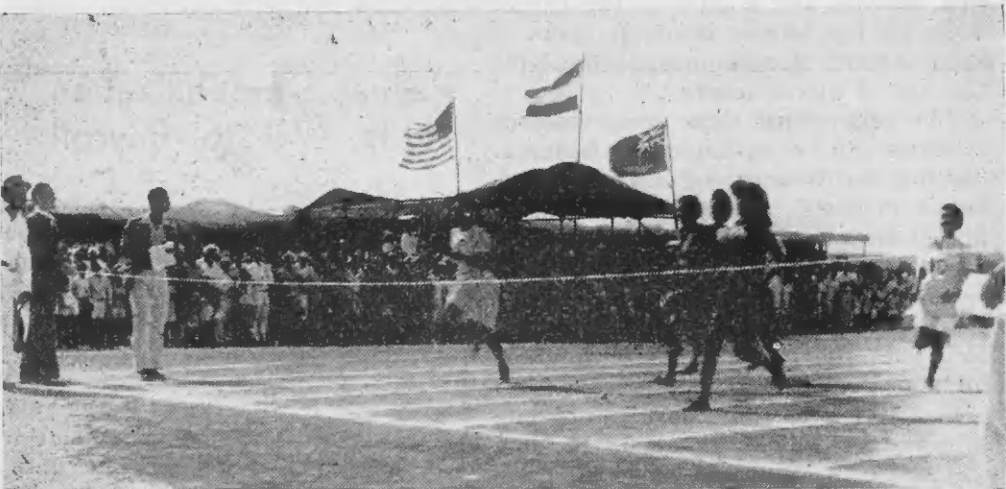

At upper right corner: It's that Jackson man again, this time winning the 100-yard with the usual ten yards between him and the nearest opponent.

Lago Heights Frolics at Birthday Fete

Brightly colored costumes gyrated gaily as the Queen's Birthday was celebrated at the Lago Heights Club on August 30.

The fancy dress dance, with Henry Nassy as Master of Ceremonies, brought forth a set of costumes and outfits the like of which would gladden the heart of any lover of odd and colorful clothes.

Competition was keen for the prizes which were awarded to the wearers of the most attractive, most original and the funniest costumes.

First prize for the most attractive costume went to Olga Singh, who was attired as an Indian Princess; second prize went to Hugo de Vries, who appeared as a Rajah, and honorable mention went to Patricia de Vries who was present as a harem girl.

For the most original costume, the first prize was given to Polly Hiemcke, who portrayed Uncle Sam and second prize in the "original" group was awarded to Adolf Brunings, who brought one of Dickens' characters to life, and to Paulina Maduro went a consolation prize for her contribution as a gypsy dancer.

The funniest costume was worn by Aggie Woiski, who appeared as Peter Pan; Adolf Brunings took second in this group also, with his Dickens outfit, and Noel Vieira as "Mr. Coming-or-Going" took the consolation prize. There was also a special prize awarded to a group of 33 Arab slaves, led by Robert Murray. (See below for picture of this group.)

At three a.m., when the party broke up, the opinion of everybody was, "swell time".

They brought Trinidad to Aruba....

Exotic though they may be, these Egyptian Slaves are just plain Lago men; they are only celebrating the Queen's Birthday in their own inimitable style. These groups, which ordinarily range from 80 to 100 in size, had their origin in Trinidad where as many as 90 groups do various "masques" at carnival time.

The masques are based on history and depict various characters or events from Biblical times or ancient days in Britain.

Pocketbooks are not spared to produce the correct costume and many hours go into the preparation of the lavish outfits.

This particular group of Egyptian slaves, led by Robert Murray, won first prize of the groups in Oranjestad on August 31.

Good enough to lead the parade....

Juan Everts of the Laundry might not be able to sail on a battleship, but he makes a pretty good one, even if it is landlocked.

He made the good ship Van Kingsbergen for the Queen's Birthday carnival in Oranjestad September 1, and made it well enough to take first prize in the contest for floats, as well as being asked to drive at the head of the parade.

It is complete down to a smokestack that spouts smoke, and it took him three evenings and a full day to make it out of assorted scrap materials, with plenty of baling wire.

Plan Lab Expansion at Bayway And Baton Rouge

Plans for two major petroleum research centers, construction of which will be started as quickly as materials are made available and to be completed late in 1946 or early in 1947, were announced recently by Eugene Holman, president of Standard Oil Company (N.J.)

The program will provide scientists of Standard Oil Development Company, central technical organization, with the most modern and extensive research facilities in the oil industry anywhere in the world.

The new centers will be at Linden, N.J., and at Baton Rouge, La., at both of which places are situated large laboratories already. The expansion program ultimately may involve the expenditure of $8,000,000. At the outset eight buildings will be erected at Linden, and one at Baton Rouge. Construction work alone is expected to provide 1,800,000 man hours of employment. Broken down into days this will mean 225,000 eight hour work days. Mr. Holman said that work would start at the earliest possible moment in order to contribute to jobs during the reconversion period for men released from the services and from war work.

To help staff the new facilities, an increase of at least 20 per cent in the present research and technical group of 2,100 will be necessary.

Adding to Mr. Holman's announcement, R. P. Russell, president of Standard Oil Development Company, said the new laboratories would be used not only for developing improved products from oil and processes for producing them but in addition extensive work on extending sources of supply on oil products would be carried out.

Mr. Russell also said that the company will expand its investigations in various aspects of the science of physics. Having had a part in the earlier work on the atomic bomb, it plans to keep abreast of developments involving the use of atomic energy.

"We believe that these great research facilities can be an important factor in keeping the American oil industry the leader in fuels, lubricants and production of chemicals from oil and gas," Mr. Russell stated. "All practical discoveries flowing from this work will be made available to the entire industry in accord with the policy we have followed for many years."

In addition to the most up-to-date scientific equipment, the main building will house probably the most extensive petroleum library in the world.

Former Resistance Paper Reports Current Conditions in Holland

The first stirrings of peace in Europe are typified in a Dutch newspaper recently loaned by E.L. van Ketel, Curaçao printer who handles the production of the Esso News. The 8½ x 11 inch single sheet, dated June 7, 1945, is published by a brother of Mr. Ketel at Schagen, Holland. It was underground during the German occupation, and now continues as a regular newspaper. In this, one of the first issues after the liberation, the contents of the paper seem to indicate that the people of the Netherlands were already at work rebuilding their war torn country.

The editorial states that Goebbels, up until the last minute possible, kept up his din that the invasion of June 6, 1944 had failed and the Allies were being driven back into the sea.

With Japan still in the fight, Holland had begun to raise troops again, and an article told of how they were to be disposed throughout the world.

The advertisements intimated that things were finally on the upswing; there were ads for various kinds of help, with cooks and farmers needed the most; an athletic meet was announced, a grocery store advertised cookies and cakes, and some cigarettes were being sold (with matches!).

Notes were printed concerning the reopening of colleges and universities after long periods of inactivity, and a story told how the polders, land previously reclaimed from the sea then flooded by the Nazis during the occupation, were being pumped dry of the damaging sea water.

But to temper the more hopeful items were the somber memorials to Dutchmen who had died for their country or had been victims of the German oppression. These bits appeared in the customary black bordered box, and were stark reminders that the nation's freedom had been regained such a short time before.

Partial Demobilization Adds 178 to Payroll

As demobilization of local service men progresses, the Company is continuing to offer employment to all of them as quickly as they can be released. At this point over 170 have started work and approximately 200 more are due to be released on October 1. These men will be sent in for interview at the rate of 20 to 30 per day beginning September 17, and the interview will continue until all the men have been seen. They will be employed during the first week in October.

In mid-October 80 more men are to be released and interviewed, and will start work on or about the first of November. This will complete the releases for the present time.

Later, as the units which they head are broken up, approximately 30 non-commissioned officers (Sub-Lieutenants and Sergeant-majors) will be released, a few at a time, and most of these men expect to accept employment with Lago. Several of them have had valuable experience and the Company will be glad to employ them.

Among the Schutters a number have received army training which enables them to fill jobs of a higher level than those they had before entering the army.

Of the 178 men who have been employed as former service men, 70 are returned employees and 108 are new. Of the 70 who have returned, 32 were on military leave of absence.

DEATHS

John Windus of the Storehouse, on August 26, at the age of 29. He had been an employee for six months. He was a Thrift Plan participant. He is survived by his wife.

James Byam of the Lago Police on August 28, at the age of 34. His service dates from April 6, 1943. He was a participant in the Thrift Plan. He is survived by his mother.
